COLUMBIA, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY July 21 1920.

NUMBER 39

OIL NEWS.

[BY E. T. KEMPER.]

A representative of a large and well-known refining company was here during the past week for the purpose of getting a line on acreage and production in this section. These people are one of the larger concerns engaged in producing, buying and refining crude oil, and their manifesting an interest in this field means much to the business locally.

Mr. Bee Whitis, field manager for the Carnahan Company, after spending a few days here getting necessary repairs made to the drilling rig at Zion Church, left Thursday for Somerset and Stanford. They have already struck a good flow of gas, but will continue deeper drilling to the next sand in the hope of striking a good pool of oil.

Mr. Lucien Beckner, one of the most prominent and reliable consulting geologists in the oil business, has been spending several days in this territory in the interest of the Roy Petroleum Company, the Palmer Oil & Gas Company, Richardson & Goff. Mr. Beckner is always very conservative in his statements and what he says regarding a field can be depended upon, so it will do doubt be of interest to the readers of the NEWS to know that he reports the structure of Adair county to be some of the most promising in the State, and he expresses the opinion that large pools of oil will yet be found in this section.

Messrs. W. H. Staley and A. M. Robertson, prominent operators from the Texas and Oklahoma fields, have been in our midst lately, and they seem to have considerable confidence in this section developing into a paying field. They have some valuable holdings in the Creelsboro section and they will doubt engage in development work there at an early date.

The McMeed Oil Company are having boiler trouble with their drilling rig at Creelsboro, and this is delaying the bringing in of well No. 4 on the Campbell Bros farm. Wells Nos. 2 and 3 are flowing periodically, No. 2 coming so strong that oil is being forced into a tank located on a hill some three hundred yards away. On account of the lack of sufficient tankage and other equipment necessary for regular pumping, no actual tests have been made of the capacity of the wells, but everything so far looks very encouraging for a satisfactory production.

Acting upon the advice of their consulting geologist, Mr. Lucien Beckner, the Roy Petroleum Company people have decided to case off the salt water in their well now drilling on Damron's Creek, and continue on down to the Trenton Sand which is looked for at a depth of something around 700 feet. Mr. G. A. Roy, president, and Mr. E. F. Steinman, secretary and treasurer of the Company, have been spending several days here, returning home Saturday, and they are feeling very hopeful of making some good strikes in Adair county at an early date.

"Those who predict, among various and sundry dire calamities, a falling off of interest in the oil industry, have yet another 'horn to toot.'" Sugar brings a good price, because the consumption exceeds production, and the same is true of oil. Already reserve stocks have been greatly depleted, judging by the reports.

Since 1899 the United States alone has produced over 7,000,000 automobiles, numbers of the railroads of the country have discarded coal burning for the more efficient oil burning locomotive. The airplane, it is predicted, will come into more general use from now on at a rapid pace—in other words, today, there are a hundred uses for oil, where formerly there was one.

It is barely possible that some of those who seem to endeavor to keep the public's mind away from investing in oil, may desire to have the public put their money in lines of endeavor or other than oil. In the meantime, fortunes are being made in oil; it has elevated in a day many a man from almost poverty to wealth, not alone in one single case, but thousands of them might be pointed out.

It's a day of progress and Oil is King.—The Oil World.

Dr. J. N. Page Quits Business.

For more than forty years Dr. J. N. Page has conducted a drug store in Columbia, and he is doubtless the best known druggist in the Green River section of Kentucky. He is known to every man in Adair county who has reached his majority, as every family in the county has patronized him more or less in all these years of his career as an apothecary. He has reached a good old age and for that reason he concluded to go out of business, though his general health is good.

He will be greatly missed, as he had a trade that would have remained with him to the end.

Dr. C. M. Russell and Mr. Herbert Taylor succeed him and at once will purchase every thing that is kept in first class drug-store and will also lay in a supply of druggist's sundries and many other articles. Dr. Russell is known as one of our leading physicians.

Mr. Taylor is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Coffey, who located in Columbia after his marriage to Miss Sara Coffey, which occurred some weeks ago. He is a native of Campbellsville, and is a very excellent young man, his parents being as good as Taylor county blood make.

While we regret to lose Dr. Page from the business affairs of Columbia, we extend our best wishes to the firm, Russell & Taylor, believing that they will so conduct the business as to meet the commendations of the people of Adair county.

We have a new lot of stoves and ranges. Come in and see them.

More About the Chautauqua.

Beginning where we left off last week, Peg O' My Heart came Monday night, the tent being crowded to its utmost. The play was grand from the beginning, all eyes being on Peg, who proved herself to be a very charming actress. She was well supported until the curtain dropped.

The lectures and music that were given until the end of the session were highly entertaining, so much so that on the last day fifty or more signers wrote their names on a contract for the return of the Chautauqua next year.

Gets two Years.

Sam Bunch, who has been living about Columbia for the last two years, was indicted at the last term of court upon a charge of detaining a woman. He was arrested and lodged in jail. Wednesday he was brought before court and when the jury was empaneled, he confessed his guilt and was given two years in the penitentiary.

Bunch came to this county from Clinton, so we are informed. He has a wife and several children left in destitute circumstances.

We do not know how the Democratic candidates for Congress are spending their time in the upper end of the district, but we know there is nothing going on in this end. It is probable that the candidates know their business. Something will have to be done to create an interest in order to get the vote out, in our judgment.

Nearly all the rural schools in Adair county started last Monday, the 12th. Mr. Loy, the County Superintendent, says that the compulsory school law has had a fine effect. One teacher reported that in his district all the children of school age were in school but two, and that they were coming soon.

It has used its resources to aid the people of Adair county and hundreds of our leading citizens have been its customers. This bank is familiarly known to the people of Adair county as "The Old Bank."

During the past few years, business of all kinds has expanded and in order that the "old bank" should be in position to help finance the progressive business activities of Adair county, it has increased its capital, added to its Board of Directors and will, in a short time, install new departments for the convenience of its customers.

This Bank believes that the public should be taken into its confidence and, from time to time, it will tell the people about its new departments.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Epperson and the bride was the only single daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Feese.

There is a camp meeting at Mt. Olive, Russell County, and it has been in progress for two weeks. It is conducted by a man named Hoover, who is assisted by another man and several women. They call themselves "Brethren in Christ." Large crowds attend and much interest is being manifested.

Mrs. A. H. Ballard will please accept the thanks of this office for some very delicious plums.

The suit against Van and Gus Dunbar brought by their sister, Mrs. L. G. Gabbert, for the sale of the W. P. Dunbar farm, was decided in favor of the plaintiff. The timber and land are the most valuable in the county. It is said that the case will be taken up.

Rev. Ernest N. Hart, of Prestonsburg, Ky., delivered two very interesting sermons at the Presbyterian church last Sunday forenoon and evening. All who heard him were delighted with his discourses.

Mr. B. F. Chewning informed the News Monday morning that he had been raising a garden for fifty-five consecutive years, and that his present garden was the best he ever grew.

An Editor's Appeal.

It is reported that one of the fastidious newly married women of this town kneads bread with her gloves on. The incident may be somewhat peculiar, but there are others.

The editor of this paper needs bread with his shoes on—he needs bread with his pants on, and unless some of the delinquent subscribers of this "Old Bag of Freedom" pony up before long, he will need bread without a d—n thing on, and North Dakota is no Garden of Eden in the winter time.—From a North Dakota Paper

Bible Institute.

A Bible Institute will be held at the Baptist Church from Aug. 10-15. A fine program has been arranged and will be printed in a few days.

A revival will follow this a few weeks later, the date being Sept. 27 to Oct. 10th. Rev. J. B. DeGarmo will do the preaching.

The mid-week services at the Baptist church for some weeks to come will be devoted to a study of the Holy Spirit. This is a vital subject, to all Christians. Come, bring your Bible and note book.

Notice, Royal Arch Masons.

Companion E. W. Reed, Secretary of Columbia Chapter, No. 7, has been officially notified that Companion E. T. Dunnigan, of Danville, will be here next Thursday night to inspect the local Chapter. All members are requested to meet in the hall promptly at 7:30 p. m.

It is only a short time until the Congressional primary. We take it that each candidate has some strength in Adair county, and it is the duty of the voters who have a preference to go to the polls and express their choice. There are eleven counties in the district and the candidates want their friends to express a choice. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes will be declared the nominee.

Miss Martha Grissom is spending the summer in the Rocky mountains, attending the summer term of the Normal University in Silver City, New Mexico. At the expiration of the school term, she will go to Elida, New Mexico and a few other places to spend the rest of her vacation.

Eld Z. T. Williams will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sunday forenoon. On this day Eld. Williams' flock will worship with the Presbyterians. The community is cordially invited. There is likely to be special music.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Mr. John Rule and Wife Seriously Hurt and a Mule Killed.

Last Sunday Mr. John Rule and wife, who live near Garlin, spent the day at the home of their son-in-law, Mr. S. C. Neat, this place. They were accompanied by a little granddaughter.

About 5 o'clock they left for their home. They were driving a mule. Reaching the Harris Bridge all three barely escaped with their lives. They had gone over the approach and had gotten on to the bridge. About one-half of the structure had been re-floored, and the mule became scared at the new plank, and the railing being down, he backed the buggy over, the occupants, falling a distance of fifteen feet, lighting upon a pile of the old flooring. There were some twenty penny nails in the plank and one penetrated Mr. Rule just under the arm pit and it reached his left lung and he was otherwise hurt. Mrs. Rule sustained a broken arm, between the wrist and elbow, and she was otherwise bruised. The little granddaughter was not injured. The mule was instantly killed. It was valued at $250. The buggy was smashed to pieces. The patients were attended by Drs. Miller and Flowers and Monday morning they were reported as doing very nicely.

We understand that the only recourse Mr. Rule has is, to indict the overseers of the road. He has certainly been hard hit. About two years ago he was run over by an automobile and badly hurt—disabled for several months.

It is hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Rule will soon recover from this serious and very unfortunate accident. The overseers are also admonished to put this bridge in a safe condition. We understand that some of the railings have been down for months. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Rule are at the home of Mr. S. C. Neat where they were conveyed after the accident.

Endorses it.

Your suggestion for a "Home Coming" day is a good one, and should be considered. One of the best days for Adair county in the present generation was the Home Coming Day of 1906. The spirit of amity and good will filled the air as old friends met and clasped hands and bid each other good cheer on the life journey. Such an occasion not only affords us great happiness in renewing and strengthening the ties of friendship but make of us better men and women.

Some farmers are kicking against the truant school law. It is true that boys at this time are badly needed on the farm, but it accomplishes nothing to kick against the law. It will have to be obeyed.

Elder Montgomery III.

Hon. Chas. F. Montgomery, of Liberty, was in this city yesterday. His father, Elder Joseph Montgomery, who has not enjoyed good health for many months, was with him. They left for Rochester, Minn., where Elder Montgomery goes for treatment at the Mayo Infirmary. Bro. Montgomery is one of the ablest and best known ministers of the Christian church in Kentucky. He is widely known throughout the State, and everyone that ever knew him will earnestly hope for his complete recovery.—Danville Messenger.

The Road to Gradyville Assured.

The pike from Ben Ed Rowe's residence, on the Burksville road, to Gradyville, is now an assumed fact. The work will commence next Monday. People living along the route met here last Saturday and bonded with the County Court for $15,000 and they have assurance for $7,000 more.

The Court appointed Judge N. H. Moss and Squire Allen Walker to superintend the work. There will be about six miles to build to reach Gradyville and the work will be pushed to completion.

Mrs. Rena Montgomery left here last Wednesday morning for Louisville with the view of consulting a specialist. She was accompanied by Dr. O. P. Miller and wife, Mrs. J. G. Eubank, and Miss Julia Eubank.

The colored institute was well attended throughout. Prof. Bell, of Earlington, not only stands high with his race, but he is respected by the white element. The colored teachers here speak of him in the highest terms.

Mrs. Mary Hadley, who was the widow of Richard Hadley, died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Geo. Blair, near White Oak, the first of last week. She was 82 years old and was buried at her old home, Russell Springs.

Mr. C. B. Rine, of Russell Springs, was here Monday morning. He stated that before he left home the completion of the pike from the point left off just out of the town, was started. It will be built to the end it will be a great help to the town.

The Masonic lodge at this place will confer the third degree on two on Friday evening the 30th. All Master Masons in good standing are invited.

A New Picture

The old idea of the farmer—gawky, obstinate and frequently ignorant; living on corn pone, sow-belly and molasses, in a sod house or timber shack, scarcely better than the building which houses his cattle and hogs—has gone forever.

The same skill and judgment that enables the Middle Western farmer, for example, to produce the best corn, wheat, cattle and hogs in the world also enables him to buy with discrimination. He is no "piker" in the action. A man with an investment ranging from $5,000 to $100,000, put in a farm, may properly be called a business man.—Senator Arthur Capper.

The Democratic Nominee.

Gov. James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee for President was three times Governor of Ohio—an honor enjoyed by only one other Ohioan, Rutherford B. Hayes.

Born on a farm, educated in the public schools, a printer's devil, a school teacher, a newspaper reporter, a private secretary to a Congressman, owner, manager and proprietor of two newspapers, member of Congress for three years and three times Governor of his State is his record to date.

Mr. Cox became the leader of the Democratic party in Ohio in 1912 when he was nominated for Governor. As one who had brought radical changes in the State Constitution, he took the field in its behalf. His first term as Governor was devoted chiefly to forwarding the enactment of laws to put the new State Constitution into effect.

But Ohio evidently was not prepared to assimilate all the laws, for Mr. Cox was defeated for re-election. But his party re-nominated him in 1916 and he was re-elected for a third term in 1918, being the only Democrat to win in Ohio.

Mr. Cox was born in Butler county, Ohio, in 1870. He attended district school and held his first position as a teacher of the school in which he took his first lessons. He spent evenings and holidays in a printing office. In a few years he received his first assignment on the reportorial staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

After ten years with the Enquirer he went to Washington as a private secretary to Congressman Paul Sorg, Ohio. At the close of this service he purchased the Dayton Daily News, borrowing most of the money to pay for it. Later he purchased the Springfield Daily News. He was first elected to Congress in 1908.

He recently purchased the farm in Ohio on which he was born, and has made it into a modern farm home, where he expects to live on retirement from public life. He is married and has four children.

Big Elm.

Some one has said Big Elm was off the map but that is a mistake. The correspondent has been absent without leave, but will now try and make up lost time. Big Elm Farm is here in all its glorification, working ten hands and trying to bring down the high cost of living. We grow on this farm corn, wheat, hay, pumpkins, apples, peaches, cherries, plums, grapes, strawberries, sold fifty gallons of strawberries at Columbia this season, grapes, pears, crab apples, sugar camp operated last spring, which made any amount of sugar and syrup, and all other garden stuff. And we have the finest and largest variety of flowers in all this section.

Big Elm Farmers have been taking the Adair County News for twenty one years. C. S. Harris had only forty two subscribers on his list when your honorable pen pusher first subscribed, and the paper made its appearance in about three weeks. We have several hundred copies laid away now, some of them running back fifteen and twenty years which we refer to concerning things that happened in Adair and adjoining counties. We don't see how we could get along without it; it is a good history of all the important happenings not only in Adair and adjoining counties but out of the state. We hear from people we know living in Texas, New Mexico and several other states.

Mrs. Wilburn, widow of William Wilburn, who proceeded her to the grave several years, died in this section last Monday, and was buried Tuesday.

On the fourth of July a day set apart for a reunion of the Aaron and Callison families at Mount Zion church, some from Columbia, some from Jamestown, and other places. It was the regular monthly meeting and a discourse was delivered by the pastor.

We are very dry here now, distressingly dry, we have had no rain since the fifth of June and most of the corn is in the clods, yet this the 29th day of June. A large part of the corn was planted late and some of it has not been planted yet. The worst prospect for corn we have ever had at the first of July.

Wheat not more than half crop, late sown wheat in some fields is very thin in others a failure.

SENTIMENT SAVES SEA LIGHT

Atlantic Coast Residents Make Fund to Save Barnegat Landmark.

Barnegat Island, N. J.—Sentiment has saved the Barnegat lighthouse, the most famed of all the signals along the Atlantic coast.

Sea voyagers approaching the American shore along the southern coast in the future can look at the blinking light at night or the solid old tower by day and have their confidence in public sentiment restored, for it will stand for many years to come as one of the greatest monuments erected to what sentiment can accomplish when appealed to properly.

To neither the United States lighthouse service, congress nor the government will they be obligated for the preservation of the familiar old coast marker.

Barnegat City decided to do its share, and agreed to an increase in the tax rate of 35 cents. This, it was estimated, would produce $8,000. Then the Long Beach board of trade got into action and this resulted in a collection of $2,000 contributed by summer visitors ready to come to the defense of the old tower.

DAUGHTER OF FAMOUS SPY

Mrs. Harold W. Mowery, daughter of Belle Boyd of Martinsburg, W. Va., the famous Confederate spy, has filed suit for separation from her third husband in the New York supreme court. Mr. Mowery has filed a counter-claim for divorce. They were married in 1906.

CLAMPED IN CAR OF TRAIN

Baggage man Held in Viselike Grip of Automatic Door as Train Speeds On.

Atlantic City, N. J.—With his head wedged between the metal edge of an automatic door and the steel jamb of a baggage car, John W. Johnson, a baggage master on the West Jersey & Seashore railroad, was held while the train sped five miles to Pleasantville.

Johnson was found limp and unconscious when the train reached the station. He was hurried by train and automobile to the Cooper hospital at Camden, where it was found he had a fractured skull and serious injuries of the neck.

The train had slowed down at the drawbridge near this city and Johnson had opened the door. Apparently he stuck his head out as the brakes were applied. The sudden jolt sprang the automatic control and he was caught. An expressman in an adjoining car and the engine crew heard no outcry.

KAISER WILL SELL HORSES

Former Emperor Guarantees Delivery of His Hackneys in Holland.

The Hague, Holland.—The horses, carriages and other belongings of former German Emperor William, which were recently offered for sale by advertisement in the Handelsblad, are still at Berlin, but the seller, who will probably be William himself, guarantees their prompt delivery in Holland. The prices quoted are free on rail and boat from Berlin. Two court carriages are offered at 96,000 marks and 65,000 marks, the hunting wagon at 50,000 marks, two sets of silver-plated harness at 30,000 marks each, the pope's present of plated gold harness at 60,000 marks and two saddles together at 25,000 marks.

The horse named Wallach, which was foaled in 1912 and is offspring from Rameses and Vizikoenigin, is offered at 97,000 marks.

Restitution After Years.

Cripple Creek, Col.—Michael W. Evans disappeared from Cripple Creek twelve years ago when alleged discrepancies to the extent of $2,500 were discovered in his accounts as manager of a local club. Recently he sent a lawyer to this city to return the money missing when he fled. Evans is said to have accumulated a fortune in the zinc mines near Joplin, Mo.

CLIFF DWELLERS OF FRANCE

In prehistoric times, when man had to compete with wild animals in the struggle for existence, he often took refuge in caves and caverns.

Few people know that there are still cave dwellers in Europe—in France in fact, not 100 miles from the great city of Paris.

The most celebrated of these cave villages are those of Bourre and of Chissay (Indre et Loire) of Brantome and Eyziat (Dordogne). The inhabitants of these villages live in caverns in the rocks. These houses or dwellings are aired both by an opening in the front and by the large chimney which protrudes above the ground. They are occasionally two or three stories high and are provided with ceilings and floors. These habitations of several stories are occasionally dug out at the side of a cliff. Upon entering one of the dwellings one is struck by the cleanliness which reigns therein. The furniture is usually of a very antique and ancient character, although at times a cradle or other pieces of modern types will be seen.

The picture shows how residences are built under the overhanging cliffs in the village of Bourre. Some of the rooms extend far into the rock.

WARN OF PASSPORT SHARKS

State Department Officials Declare Legal Fee for Papers is Only $2.

Washington.—Many persons unfamiliar with passport requirements have been subjected to extortionate charges by persons purporting to aid them or to influence in the matter of obtaining passports. In order that all persons who desire passports to visit foreign countries may know their rights in the matter, the state department authorized the following:

"Naturalized Americans are advised that the legal fee for a passport, collectible only by the state department, or its representatives at New York and San Francisco, or by the clerk of the court who takes the passport application, is $2, and that any applicant, if there is nothing against his record, who complies with the simple conditions can secure the passport to go abroad, without further expense. The department has been informed that many innocent persons have been charged from $10 to $50 or more for alleged influence to secure these government papers."

INDIANS WEARY OF HOTELS

Rich Red Men Will Have Exclusive Open Air Quarters in Colorado.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Lo the red man is weary of stuffy hotel rooms while enjoying a summer's outing in the shadow of Pike's peak, and in response to many requests local authorities have set aside a plot around Austin's bluff, near here, which hundreds of Osage Indians, become wealthy from development of their Oklahoma oil lands, will have for their exclusive use the coming season.

In their high-priced motor cars, but still wearing the multicolored blankets of other days, the Indians with "heap big wampum" can cavort in the open countryside to their heart's content.

GIRL BLINDED BY GOLF STICK

Eastern Young Woman Loses Sight After Glasses Are Smashed by Blow.

New York.—Specialists were called to treat Miss Marion Buchanan of Peekskill, whose left eye was blinded by a blow from a golf stick.

She was playing with Miss Elizabeth Phinn at the Peekskill Country club's links. As Miss Phinn made a drive, Miss Buchanan got in front of the stick while leaning over. The end of the stick struck her in the left eye. Her eyeglasses were smashed and she fell unconscious. She was unable to see after that out of the eye.

Miss Buchanan is the daughter of Andrew Buchanan, one of the wealthy family of oilcloth manufacturers.

Vine Blossoms at His Death.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Twenty-five years ago on his way home from a business trip to Washington, Hunter Wood, Sr., stopped at his birthplace in Albemarle county, Virginia, and brought home with him a shoot from a beautiful honeysuckle vine. The vine flourished, except that it bore no blooms, much to Wood's regret. Saturday, the day of Wood's death, the vine blossomed for the first and only time in a quarter of a century.

SWIMS 600 FEET TO WARN TRAIN

Section Foreman Braves Raging icy Waters to Save 150 Passengers.

After Setting the Danger Signals Foreman Remembers His Negligence and Swims Back Across 600 Feet of Swirling Current.

Omaha.—In the recent South Dakota floods John Williams, a section foreman, swam a swollen creek at night in a hailstorm to warn a passenger train that a bridge had gone out. He stripped himself and tied the danger signals to his back. After he had set them he approached a near-by house, then remembered his negligence and swam back across the 600 feet of swirling current.

The passenger train, it developed later, was stopped farther up the road at a point where the railroad men had little hope of halting it. Williams' heroism, however, was not overlooked by the railroad officials.

The bridge was the Burlington's over Hat creek, near Ardmore, S. D. The Hat creek flood tied up traffic for eight days and cost seven lives and did $500,000 damage to the one road.

Several days after the flood the section foreman was looked up by a newspaper man from the city. He found him directing a gang of laborers repairing the washout.

Williams related how it had been raining through the previous week and the April blizzard had left the ground soaked, so that when the last storm came on it ran off as if from a duck's back "and old Hat creek started on a rampage."

Decided to Swim.

"I kept watching the new bridge over the creek all afternoon," Williams told his visitor, "and the water kept comin' up and comin' up until it reached the ties. Then I got worried for fear that the bridge would go out, and I went back to town and reported it to the operator. He told the dispatcher at Alliance about it. The telephone and telegraph wires runnin' west had all gone down and we couldn't get Edgemont or anyone west of the creek. Jack Welch, the dispatcher at Alliance, talked to me over the railroad phone and asked me if I could get to the west end of the bridge, across the creek, and put out a red light and some stop signals so as to hold the night passenger train, No. 32, which was due at nine o'clock. I told him I'd try, and went back to the bridge."

"When I got there again the water was clear over the top of the bridge, and it looked to me like one of the steel spans had gone out. We tried to phone the government farm on the other side to ask them to go out and put out a red light, but their phone was gone and we couldn't reach anybody."

"Well, I just figured the chances was probably against me gittin' across, but it was only my life against 150 passengers on No. 42, and I figured that the train would be running pretty fast when they came up to the bridge, and they might be into it before they saw it, so I walked up the creek a half-mile, stripped off my clothes, tied my red lantern, red flag and torpedoes to my back, and swam across."

Swam Back for Clothes.

"There wasn't so many trees out there, and she was only about 600 feet wide, but the water was full of hailstones and cold as h—, it was rainin' to beat the band and dark as blazes. I sure felt good when I hit that fence on the other side and drug myself on the bank."

"How did you get back to Ardmore?" Williams was asked, after he had related how he placed the signals.

"Well, I walked up to the government house, but when I got close to the office and saw the bright lights there, I remembered I didn't have no clothes on and I thought I'd make a pretty lookin' sight bustin' in on 'em like that, so I walked back up the stream and swam back."

Ghost Fined and Must Walk Earth Elsewhere

Seattle.—William W. Aber, arrested by policemen C. C. Fortner and E. Yoris, in his home, 651 West Fifty-fifth street, while he was appearing as the "ghost of Bessie" before E. C. Berger, Jack Werner and H. Winters, who had given the clairvoyant $2 to materialize a spirit, pleaded guilty to vagrancy before Justice of the Peace Otis W. Brinker and was fined $50 and costs.

He paid his fine and promised Judge Brinker to leave the city.

Boy, Page the Pled Piper.

Cincinnati, O.—Government experts have opened headquarters here for the purpose of waging war on rats in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio. Rats have caused great losses on farms in the three states and a campaign of extermination has been begun. Health officers and civic organizations will be expected to aid in the crusade.

LONG A PLACE OF WORSHIP

Before the Christian Era Romans Honored Their Gods on the Mountain of Monserrat.

Monserrat, the famous shrine in the Spanish province of Barcelona, illustrates the effect which high mountains have on men. When you climb to the top of a high mountain you feel worshipful and at peace with the universe.

Monserrat is an outlying spur of the Pyrenees which stands all alone, splendidly dominating a rich plain. It is one of the most ancient and famous of Catholic shrines. According to legend, many centuries ago an image of the Virgin was found at the top of the mountain, and it was impossible to move the image. Thus it was shown to men that they should build a shrine on Monserrat.

In medieval times it was a shrine of unexcelled beauty and splendor. An emperor came here to kneel and to cover the great Byzantine church with gold. A queen walked up the mountain barefoot. The great and the learned of all the Christian world gathered at Monserrat. Its greatness came to an end in the nineteenth century when the French sacked the shrine and carried away the ornaments.

Now the church has been rebuilt and offers free lodging to the pilgrims who come there still, but the fame and splendor of the place have shrunk. Yet Monserrat will always be a shrine. Before Christ the Romans had a temple of Venus there and before that more than likely savages worshiped their gods on the mountain top.

Worship veritably grows in the soil of Monserrat.

TO MAKE AND HOLD FRIENDS

Knack That Can Be Acquired by Most People, and Is Well Worth the Having.

Few people are naturally blessed with the happy faculty of making friends easily. With most people it is more or less an acquired art. If you wish to acquire this art, don't be discouraged at the apparent ease with which some of your friends seem to "get on" with everybody. They've only learned a few more of the "tricks of the trade," so to speak, than you have. That's all. The main point is that they have learned them. A person who would have friends must show himself friendly. Just you try it and see if it doesn't act like a charm.

Half the battle is to meet people as if it may be taken for granted that they are glad to see you, and that you are glad to see them. Nine cases out of ten if you are genuinely glad to see them and show it they will be glad to see you.

Don't always expect the other person to make the advances if there is no good reason why you shouldn't make them. Sometimes the very persons who seem most "unapproachable" turn out to be quite willing to be friendly if they are approached in the right way. Look for the good in people, always, and you will be very sure to find it.

Forming a Child's Ideas.

Priceless opportunities belong to a mother to give to the baby, with his whole life before him, the true foundations of character and chances of future happiness and greatness. So the first thing a wise woman does is to reason the matter out, deciding on a method of action which can be pursued with as little deviation as possible. Preparation is needed, for just as love does not bestow a mysterious instinct as to the proper physical treatment of a baby, so affection alone will not prove a sufficient guide or teacher in the matter of character training. One has to cultivate the power of restraining impulse, of infinite patience and infinite self-control and a firm grasp of those principles which underlie the formation of character. By possessing these powers herself, the mother is able to direct a child's conduct and to suggest motives to him at a time when his impulses are natural and his ideas yet unformed, when he will learn literally unconsciously.

Early Irish History.

In the earliest time of which there is any record, Ireland was inhabited by tribes of the great Celtic family, to which belonged the ancient Britons of the larger island, and the Gauls of the country now known as France. Each tribe had its chief, and after a time a supreme monarch came to the front. One of the most famous of these was Brian, who overthrew the invading Danes in the battle of Clontarf, fought in the year 1014 near Dublin. He was slain in his tent at the close of the fight. After his death the supreme monarchy was often in complete abeyance, misrule and anarchy widely prevailed and the ancient form of society was largely broken up. It is said that Roderick O'Connor, son of Turlogh, was the last of the monarchs of Celtic Ireland. From that time the influence of Anglo-Normans increased.

Effect of the Moon on Tides.

The moon, often aided by the sun, pulls up the tide. It draws every object on the earth to it, but only the water, which is highly mobile, can readily respond. There are two tidal waves on earth, one beneath the moon, and one directly opposite on the other side. The cause of the tides on the opposite face is interesting. The moon pulls the earth away from the water, and lets a bulge of it hang partly released from the earth's control.

HAS LIFE ONLY FOR DEFECTS

Chronic "Knocker" Blind to Any Good Qualities Prominent in Either Friend or Enemy.

The knocker is a common wild animal you have all met. He is known by the loud noise which he makes all the time, which sounds like the strokes of a hammer on an anvil. I never knew of a place which did not have at least one confirmed knocker. One is enough to go around.

The knocker seems to be afraid of dying from shame if he should ever be caught saying something good about a person. He knocks the folks he works with. If you mention a good thing about a man, he is always ready with his "Yes, but—" and then he starts in with a long string of defects to offset the good qualities.

This animal has very keen eyes when he is looking for defects, but for good qualities he is stone blind. In nine cases out of ten he is envious or jealous, and when one has a feeling of inferiority, it is much easier to "run down" other people than to lift one's self up.

Many men do it who do not mean to do the harm they cause, but it is a habit they easily get into, and it not only does harm to other people, but it robs a man himself of the pleasure he might get out of the good things in other men.

An astronomer had been looking through a telescope at the sun for several hours one day, when someone said to him, "What a fine day we have had."

"I really hadn't noticed it," he answered, "I've been looking for the spots in the sun."

A man misses all the good things when he is on the outlook for spots.—H. E. Lucecock in "Five Minute Shop Talks."

AMERICAN OF CLEAR VISION

John Willis Griffiths Revolutionized the Science of Merchant Shipbuilding and Naval Architecture.

John Willis Griffiths was the man who revolutionized the science of merchant shipbuilding and naval architecture. In 1841 he appeared before the American institute in New York and proposed a model for a new ship. He succeeded in interesting William Aspinwall, one of New York's China trade princes, who in 1842 signed a contract to build a ship of 750 tons according to Griffiths' designing.

The ship was completed in January, 1845, and named the Rainbow. The Rainbow sailed for China in February, and was back home again in September to reward her owners with 200 per cent over what she had cost.

John Willis Griffiths was born in New York in 1809, and died there in 1882. He was the inventor of the trap style of hull construction; the builder of the United States steamship Princeton, the first twin screw ocean-going vessel, and was the inventor of the process of bending ship timber in a vacuum. In 1851 he published privately a treatise on naval architecture which attracted comparatively little attention in this country, but its merits were recognized in England, and he became a lecturer in Edinburgh university on naval architecture.

Sheep-Raising Old Industry.

Sheep raising is perhaps the oldest of all industries, for it was practiced even before agriculture. Wool is a product of cultivation or domestication, for there are no wild animals which closely resemble the wool-bearing sheep. Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post, says that with the discovery that cloth could be made from wool came an effort to improve the fleece by selection and breeding. The early Romans were most successful in this pursuit, and their endeavors along this line resulted in developing a fleece of great fineness. After the conquest of the Iberian peninsula, Roman sheep were introduced into Spain, where they so greatly improved the native flocks that even during Roman supremacy Spanish wool led the world's markets, a prestige held for many centuries.

Dinner for Dyspeptics.

Sir Henry Holland, the late Lord Knutsford's father, gave what is not too common—a really pleasant piece of medical advice. He recommended his dyspeptic patients to go out to dinner and eat made dishes.

Herbert Spencer, one of the recipients of this advice, found it to a considerable extent justified.

"The effects of agreeable emotions are often surprising," says the valentian philosopher. "I have had many experiences of the fact that dyspepsia, so far from being necessarily exacerbated by dining out, may even be cured, notwithstanding many dietetic imprudences, if the social surroundings are such as to yield great pleasure."—London Chronicle.

Bird Eats 1,000 Bugs.

A cliff swallow will eat a thousand flies, mosquitoes, wheat-midges or beetles that injure fruit trees in a day and therefore is to be encouraged, says the American Forestry association of Washington.

This bird is also known as the cave swallow because it plasters its nest on the outside of a barn or other building up under the eaves. Colonies of several thousand will build their nests together on the side of a cliff.

These nests shaped like a flattened gourd or water bottle are made of bits of clay rolled into pellets and lined with straw or feathers. This bird winters in the tropics.

"LIVE UP TO" THE CHILDREN

Writer Condemns Old-Fashioned Idea of Repression and Stern Punishment for Trivial Offenses.

It seems to me a great mistake to "live down to" children. They are capable of understanding and responding to deep and fine thoughts and feelings. Never from the first did we criticize or humiliate our boys in any way. We gave them credit always for the high and right motive, and suspended judgment till they had told their side. But if they were wrong they were not punished. The fact that they had fallen below what had been expected of them was punishment enough. A certain standard of conduct was thus established that they longed always to realize. They were able, even then, to see the beauty of certain qualities and the ugliness of others. It was lovely to see them trying to conform to the habit in the household, of unfailing courtesy and unselfishness and restraint. They often failed. They often showed their temper. But they grew to be more and more ashamed of their failures.

Character cannot be built from the outside. Coercion does not make for strength—only for compliance. That, it seems to me, is the great mistake some parents make. They exact obedience when they should instill principle. Inspire! That is the better word. Then the child will have an inner light to guide him, a compass to steer him to a certain goal.

When the guiding hand is lifted, so many are left with no deep convictions—principles to shape their destiny—but impulses. They may be good, they may be bad, as life plays upon their emotions and desires. To trust to them for guidance is like going out upon a stormy sea in a tiny craft at the mercy of tossing waves and wind.—Katron Trousdale, in Christian Herald.

SHAFT IS WELL PROTECTED

Washington Monument Made Immune From Lightning by Scheme That Has Proved Its Worth.

The apex of the Washington monument is surrounded with parallel bands. The bands are studded with golden points. The bands are made of gold-plated iron a foot wide, and the points are spaced a foot from one another.

According to the original plan of the monument it was protected from lightning by an aluminum tip that was connected with the metal framework of the elevator. During the very first summer after the monument was completed, however, it was struck twice, and a piece of stone was chipped from the top.

Experts from all the scientific departments of the government were called on to contrive a plan for the better protection of the shaft. They agreed on a number of iron bands, heavily galvanized and gold plated, to prevent rusting.

The bands are connected with the aluminum point of the monument, and the framework of the elevator, and at the base iron cables lead the electricity into a deep well, where it harmlessly expends its force. The protection has proved to be perfect.

Why "Actors Hate Cats."

Speaking at the International Women's Franchise club in London, Miss Horniman, the English theatrical manager, told some entertaining stories of theatrical experiences. Actors can stand a good deal, she said, but they hate a cat, for they know that as long as it is on the stage the audience can look at nothing else. Miss Horniman had some amusing stories of the Gayety cats. Trixie, who was killed on the scene of her public triumphs by the fall of the safety curtain, once spoiled the last act of "Hindle Wakes" by getting under a table where the actors could not see her, but the audience could, and cheerfully pretending to chase a mouse. Then strolling across to the stage fire, she turned from it with disdain and settled herself for warmth among the footlights. Another cat intruded into a quiet scene of tragic farewell and led the short-sighted lover on a futile chase among the overturning furniture.

Radio-Active Lead.

At least two kinds of lead exist, writes Prof. Theodore W. Richards in Science. One, the ordinary metal disseminated throughout the world; another, a form of lead apparently produced by the decomposition of uranium, radium being one of the intermediate products. If we leave out of consideration the probable inessential difference in radio activity, the two kinds are very closely if not exactly alike in every respect, excepting atomic weight, density and immediately related properties involving weight, such as solubility. Thorium lead appears to be a third variety, with similar relations. Shall we call these substances different elements, or the same?

European Jiu-Jitsu.

Jiu-Jitsu is supposed to come from Japan, but an art of self-defense virtually identical with it was taught in Europe during the seventeenth century. Its principles are expounded in a book by one Nicholas Peters, published at Amsterdam in 1674, which bears the long explanatory title: "The art of wrestling, and how one can protect oneself in all kinds of quarrels that may occur; how one can with agility and rapidly repel all unfair attacks, and meet one's adversary with science."

Democratic Ticket

FOR PRESIDENT
JAMES M. COX, of Ohio.FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, of New York.FOR UNITED STATES SENATE
J. C. W. BECKHAM.

This week we place at the head of our editorial columns the Democratic ticket for President, Vice President and for United States Senator. Henry Watter-son stated in an article published in the Courier-Journal, last week, that the Democratic Presidential ticket was unbeatable. The Republicans harp on Morrow carrying Kentucky by 40,000 majority, but they do not tell you that 10,000 Democrats voted for the present Governor of Kentucky and fifty thousand Democrats remained away from the election. Kentucky is a Democratic State and harmony prevails at this time. Furthermore, notwithstanding Morrow carried the State by a majority of 40,000, Woodrow Wilson in his last race received 7,000 more votes in the State than were cast for Morrow. We do not know of a dissatisfied Democrat in Adair county and from what we gather from our exchanges, perfect harmony prevails throughout the State. Hence the Democrats have but one thing to do, get busy and keep busy until the election, then vote. It is also very important that every Democratic female who has reached the age of 21 years vote in this election. The Republicans will use all the power they can command to see that every negro woman votes. Furthermore, the Democratic ladies should feel the same interest in this contest as do their husbands, fathers and brothers.

The Democratic Party will enter this campaign with the strongest case that any party ever presented to the American people in the last fifty years. It will stand upon a record of matchless achievements, in peace and in war, that have fulfilled the highest hopes and promises of its friends, and have at the same time astounded and confused the minds of its adversaries. In the most eventful and tragic period of the world's history it has guided the destinies of this great nation with such wisdom and success that it should command the approval and admiration of all fair-minded people. In its seven years of power it has accomplished more for the welfare of our people and for the good of mankind than its chief rival, the Republican party, ever accomplished from the day of its birth to the present time. * * * The Democratic Party's record is unassailable and impregnable. It deserves an indorsement. The Republican Party hasn't an argument to stand upon.—Extract from a speech of Senator Beckham.

The Elizabethtown News says it is a platform "which will satisfy all reasonable Democrats and will make votes for the Party." The more one reads it, the more clearly this appears; and if one will but compare it, section by section, thought with thought, and underlying spirit with underlying spirit, thus drawing out all the venom and hatred of the one and the forward looking purpose of the other, the more irrefutable does the conclusion of Colonel Sommers appear.

A Washington dispatch reports Mrs. John W. Langley, wife of the Congressman from the Tenth District and member of the Republican National Committee's advisory body as being active in organizing the negro women of Kentucky for Harding. Now there is very little good of criticizing this and doing nothing. And since the negro women are taking the lead for Harding, it is not necessary to suggest what to do.

When the Governor of Kentucky undertakes personally to conduct litigation for the State, he adds neither to the dignity of his office nor to the strength of the State's cause, and he sadly demeans both the office and the incumbent of the office of Attorney General, and the whole thing takes on an air of partisanship calculated to bring justice into disrepute.

The Hartford Herald says: "If making such a record as will cause our party to believe in you to such an extent it favors a continuance of your policy is bossing, then President Wilson bossed the San Francisco Convention." And we say, "If that be treason, make the most of it."

Among things not mentioned in the Republican Platform: America's part in the war. Was this not important? Was it not honorable? Could not the Republicans have remembered at least our dead who died in the war? Their silence deserves an earnest rebuke.

Senator Harding has announced his intention, if elected, to take Governor Coolidge into his most intimate confidence and make him, as it were, a junior member of the firm, thus amending the Constitution by ipse dixit and upsetting the judicious balance of government provided for in that instrument. The distinguished Senator is generally at pains to manifest his great respect for the wisdom of those whom he whimsically refers to as the "founding fathers" but evidently believes they were shortsighted in respect to the place and function that Vice President should have. It is a shame, says the Senator, whose words being few and seldom are impressive, that the presiding officer in the Senate has not a more active part in the Government. What about the presiding officer in the House, Senator? If we must reform the Government, might it not be just as well to keep the people in mind? Indeed, might it not be just as well to continue holding the President himself responsible and elect one who can take up and bear the responsibility?

It really is too bad the Republicans got their ticket turned around like they did, but it does not seem wise to change the constitution to accommodate their awkwardness.

In respect to Governor Cox, Kentucky is in almost as favored position as if he were a native son. He is a near and cordial neighbor and Kentucky Democracy supported him strong from the start, with just enough division to show that the sentiment for him was spontaneous and natural, not "worked up." We will see the force of this situation in November, for Kentuckians, whether Democrat or Republican, have not much taste for being bossed by outsiders and the fact that Harding did not get a Kentucky vote till it had all been fixed up for him, will be sure to tell.

GRAHAM VREELAND DEAD.

E. Graham Vreeland, owner and publisher of the Frankfort State Journal and one of the best-known newspaper men in Kentucky, died Thursday morning at 4 o'clock at Norton Infirmary from a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Vreeland's death was almost without warning, though he had been in failing health for a year and had been found by his physicians in Frankfort to have high blood pressure. He had arranged to come to Louisville for observation and treatment by Dr. Henry E. Tuley.

With his wife and daughters he made the trip from Frankfort. They had dinner at the Seelbach, and Mr. Vreeland left the family to go to the infirmary. He kissed them good-bye, saying he would be back within twenty-four hours. Neither he nor any of his family had any thought of a fatal termination.

Mr. Vreeland was one of the best known men in Kentucky. He was owner and editor of the Frankfort State Journal, and also operated a large job-printing establishment in Louisville. At one time he was managing editor of the Courier-Journal, and in other capacities, he was connected with this paper for many years. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Sallie Dohoney, of Adair county, a daughter of the late Geo. W. Dohoney.

SPEND BILLIONS FOR LUXURIES

Secretary of the Treasury Shows How Americans Can Save $22,700,000,000.

GLEANED FROM TAX RETURNS

Carpets, Furs, Autos and Soap Classed With Gum, Candy and Rouge—$750,000,000 Spent for Perfumery and Cosmetics.

Washington.—Cut out the chewing gum, lay off the cigarettes, pull the sweet tooth, drink only water, do without cosmetics, perfumes, cigars, tobacco, snuff, furs, carpets and such clothing luxuries as silk shirts; wash your face with yellow soap, ride the street cars instead of the autos and depend upon your own cultivated or uncultivated voice for music—and you will save $22,700,000,000!

That, in effect, is the advice recently handed out by Secretary of the Treasury Houston to the 110,000,000 Americans, in the course of an economy article. His figures for expenditures upon so-called luxuries are compiled from federal tax returns and are probably, for that reason, not very far from the truth. Just how many persons might agree with Secretary Houston concerning his definition of what constitutes a luxury—for instance, carpets, tobacco, automobiles and toilet soap—is problematical. It is a definition similar to that famous hypothetical question—never asked—“What is a man?” Likewise, the wartime puzzle of “What is an essential industry?”

Here Are Our Luxury Expenditures. However, the figures are interesting from the standpoint of knowing approximately what the American people do spend on things that they could do without and still remain comfortable. The table of “luxury” expenditures arranged by Secretary Houston from the reports from the present federal income tax returns, follows:

Chewing gum $2,000,000
Candy 1,000,000
Cigarettes and cigars 10,000,000
Cosmetics and toilet soap 750,000,000
Perfumes and essences 25,000,000
Furs 10,000,000
Tobacco and snuff 10,000,000
Carpets and luxurious clothing 150,000,000
Automobiles and parts 200,000,000
Toilet soap 25,000,000
Flowers, organs and phonographs 25,000,000

Making Costs Still Higher. According to comment in an official in the New York Journal of Commerce, which prints Secretary Houston's table of figures, “few persons would deny that of those items which have been so judiciously enumerated here, nearly all would be greatly reduced in amount without inflicting suffering or even inconvenience upon the population.”

“The fact that the American public is spending such sums as these for the purposes mentioned gives point to the often repeated and often disregarded injunction to be guided by the policy of thrift at least to a moderate extent in both personal and business expenditure,” says the official. “It also throws a glaring light upon the current complaints concerning the cost of living. If the nation can spend $22,700,000,000 upon articles which in large part are purely luxuries, it evidently is not suffering from a depressed standard of living. While, on the other hand, it is obviously making things much harder for itself by drawing off the commodities, services and capital used in the production of this great volume of consumable goods which otherwise would go to make the ‘necessaries of life’ more plentiful and hence cheaper.”

REAL KISS IN CANDY STORE

Girl Is Given What She Asked For in New York, but Owner Is Fined.

New York.—Joseph Weiss, thirty-five and married, who runs a candy store at 489 East One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street, was arraigned before Magistrate Nolan in night court on a charge of disorderly conduct in having kissed eighteen-year-old Frances Heckler when she went into his store to buy some candy kisses.

Magistrate Nolan fined Weiss $2, which he paid. The magistrate, in fixing the amount of the fine, said in a judicial aside to the clerk, “Kisses are cheaper now since the boys came back from the war.”

Miss Heckler was in night court in a state bordering on hysterics and testified that she had gone back to the counter at Weiss' invitation to select what she wanted when he put his arm around her and kissed her vigorously upon the mouth.

SEEKING CAESAR IN ROMAN RUINS

Buried Fortress of Segontium, Near Castle, to Be Excavated.

OF GREAT HISTORIC INTEREST

Results of the Excavation Will Be Keenly Followed by Archaeologists of Both Hemispheres—British History Involved.

Less than half a mile to the south-east of the ancient castle of Carnarvon in North Wales lies the buried Roman fortress of Segontium. The castle is a grim and lordly pile planted by a grim king in token of his might; erected, so Pennant says, by the forced labor of Welsh peasants on money wrung from the Welsh chieftains who had failed in the struggle against King Edward I. It dates back some seven hundred years in British history, but compared with the Roman fortress of Segontium it is a thing of yesterday. Ernest H. Rann tells the Boston Transcript. Long before the Saxon, Dane or Norman trod the soil of Britain the land echoed to the heavy tread of armed Roman legions as they pushed on toward the setting sun in their attempt to establish the dominion of the Caesars over the whole of western Europe. They laid the course of Watling street diagonally across the country, through St. Asaph (Vendunium), Deunstable (Durocobrinum) and Towcester (Lancaster) to Chester (Devon) on a line now followed by the London and North Western railway. Through Chester they passed on to Carnarvon (Segontium) and straggled across the Menai straits, over a track now followed by the “Wyl Irishman,” the London Northern mail train, as it skirts on to Liverpool.

The Light of the Spade in History. At Segontium was established the last Roman fort, at the terminus of their military road in North Wales. It is this Roman fort which British archaeologists now propose to excavate if the sufficient sum of $10,000 can be raised to defray the expenses of the work.

There are few more obscure periods in the history of Wales than that of the Roman occupation, and it is not to be expected that much light will be thrown upon it by literary records. But the spade may give us what we seek in vain from the written or printed page, and excavation has already yielded valuable results from Caerwent, Gelliaer, Castell Collen and Caerwys. So far, however, nothing has been done in the northwest corner of the principality, that region of Gwynedd which occupies so large a space in the history of medieval Wales. The proposed excavation of Segontium may enable this gap to be filled with accurate if not extensive information.

The Roman fort of Segontium took its name from the river (now the Saint) on which it stood, and occupied the higher ground behind the present town of Carnarvon, where in a later age was built the church of Llenbellig. It was known to the Welsh as “Caer Saint” or “Y Gaer yn Arfon.” While inferior in importance to the legionary stations at Isca and Deva, it was a fortress of some consequence, covering about five and a half acres and serving, as I have said, as the terminus of the military road which ran through North Wales.

And I may add that from Aberglaslyn and Gortmadoc, in the neighborhood of Carnarvon, Prince Madoc ap Owain Gwynedd is said in Welsh legend to have mustered his forces and sailed in ten ships for the colonization of North America, toward the end of the twelfth century.

A Belgian Garrison. An inscription of about 200 A. D. chronicles the fact that at that time the water supply of the place was put in order by the first cohort of Sunilic, and this auxiliary force, drawn or partly drawn from Belgium, may have furnished the regular garrison of Segontium. No attempt has hitherto been made to examine the site systematically, and, as was said by the late Doctor Haverfield—than whom no greater authority on Roman Britain lived—“The spade alone can determine the successive stages which Roman Carnarvon may have experienced. This much is certain. There is no site in North Wales, and only one or two others in the whole peninsula, which are so likely, if properly and systematically explored, to throw light on the condition of the country in the later Roman and earliest post-Roman ages.”

Chance finds that have already been made are of considerable historical value, particularly a talisman or charm in the form of a thin plate of gold-bearing magical characters and a Greek inscription calling on sundry spirits to protect one Alphanos from evil. It is probable that it was made in Alexandria in the second century. What had been its wanderings before it was crushed among the ruins of Segontium!

The fragment of a similar charm may be seen at York, and these make the only two of their kind to be found in Britain. Another find was the famous gold crossbow brooch of the fourth century, which is now preserved in the Carnarvon town library.

In order to secure the land for the purpose of excavation, a number of people interested in Welsh's archeology, and with one exception resident in the counties of Carnarvon and Anglesey, purchased the areas near the “Waterworks” in order that they might be saved from the hands of the builders and be systematically explored. Three acres are within the wall of the fortress, and half an acre lies without it. In addition to these two areas, it is probable that permission will be obtained to excavate about three and a half acres immediately adjoining the main site, on the northwest and northeast, and the vicar of Carnarvon has stated that he will put no difficulty in the way of carrying out excavation in the vicarage garden, which lies within the wall of Segontium and covers about an acre and a half. The land available for excavation is therefore from three and a half to eight acres in extent, of which the greater part lies within the walls of the fortress. In view of the importance and extent of the work, the services of an expert excavator will be obtained, and he will work under instructions from Prof. R. C. Bosanquet. The work will be spread over two or more years, and results will be keenly followed by archaeologists in both hemispheres. It is anticipated that students and many others will visit the site while excavations are in progress.

The purchasers of the areas are willing that all finds shall be deposited in a museum at Carnarvon if a suitable building can be provided, on the condition that the exhibition, care and safe custody of such finds will be assured in the future. An offer has been received to house the finds in the National museum of Wales at Cardiff.

The Prince of Wales. First among those who are taking an interest in the excavation of Segontium may be mentioned the prince of Wales. Before he left England on his tour of Australia and New Zealand he had explained to him the whole scheme, and he expressed his warm approval of the work and the objects which the committee has in view. It was only natural that he should do so, for Segontium lies within half a mile of Carnarvon castle, where his investiture as prince of Wales took place shortly before the war. In Queen Eleanor's gateway, King George presented his son to the assembled multitude.

The Cambrian Archaeological association simplified its appreciation of the importance of the undertaking at its last general meeting, and its excavation committee has recommended an initial grant of $750 to head the list of subscriptions. An annual interim report of the excavations will appear in “Archaeologia Cambrensis.” Active support has also come from the Society of Antiquaries, and it is proposed to solicit the help and influence of the Smithsonian institution of the United States of America. The combined appeal to the pocket and imagination of the scientific archaeologist ought not to fall on deaf ears. While archaeologists have been making history during the war in the near East, archaeology, like most of the more sedentary pleasures of life, has been hibernating. Now it is beginning to awake and realize how much lost time has to be made up, and one of the first tasks to hand is the excavation of the Roman fortress of Segontium, by which it is hoped, much light may be thrown on one of the darkest pages of British history, on the history, indeed, of all races of British origin.

Prize Snake Yarn of Year Comes From Brazil Wilds

The Brazilian state of Mato Grosso has produced a snake story which takes first prize right out of the hands of the snakeiest community of Indiana or Arkansas.

A traveler was journeying by mule-back along a jungle trail when he came upon a saddle horse without a rider. The traveler halted, shotgun in hand, to investigate.

He heard a noise in the tropical thicket and peering under the foliage he saw a huge snake of the species ophidio in the throes of indigestion. The traveler took advantage of the illness of the monster to kill it. The snake was cut open and within was found the owner of the horse, fully attired in sombrero, boots, spurs and raincoat.

OIL BURNER ON FRENCH ROAD

American Locomotive Proves Success on Tours Railway Line.

Paris.—The first demonstration of a heavy American oil-burning locomotive on a French railway was given with an American engineer at the throttle. Yves le Troquer, minister of public works, who formerly was an engineer, ran the train part of the way. Officials who occupied the cars declared the test had proved entirely successful and said 400 locomotives would be transformed into oil burners.

The jelly is still in good condition.

The New Motor Law.

Every driver of an automobile and every garage in Kentucky should cut out the following provisions of the new motor law and paste them up where they will be seen and remembered:

On Thursday, June 17th, the new motor law of Kentucky went into effect. This bill is an improvement on preceeding bills in many particulars, should have special attention.

The new bill makes it illegal to have a cutout connected as to permit of its operation from the drivers seat. It provides that every car must be equipped with a good and sufficient muffler and makes the use of the cutout on a public highways unlawful. It is to be hoped that this provision will be strictly enforced and that it may be of assistance in making an end of the nuisance of those drivers who hustle north and south and east and west in utter indifference to all but themselves making noises like a perpetual Fourth of July.

The new law also has stringent provisions as to the use of glaring headlights. It forbids headlights throwing rays higher than forty-two inches from the surface of the road seventy-five feet ahead and more than this, it provides a punishment for dealers to sell automobiles with headlights not in accordance with the law. We would especially call the attention of all automobile dealers to this provision making it unlawful to arrange a cutout so that it may be operated from the driver's seat.

The law provides for new signals on the part of automobile drivers as follows:

Arm straight out—turning in the direction pointed.

Arm pointed upward—turning in the opposite direction.

Arm pointed downward—stopping or suddenly checking speed.

It is required that signals shall be given whenever a driver starts from the curb, changes his course or makes a stop which could be said to affect traffic.

There is a new provision as to the right of way. When there are no traffic officers stationed, the drivers shall yield the right of way at intersections to vehicles approaching from the right. This is of importance in that it supercedes the old provision that vehicles going east and west should have the right of way.

There also new speed provisions. Passenger cars may not exceed fifteen miles per hour in the business portion of the city, twenty miles per hour in the residence portion, and thirty per hour in the country.

The are chief provisions of these new law, and it is the hope of everyone that the law will be strickly enforced.

The Automobile.

Hail to lowly and sticky molasses;

From it is being produced “motor alcohol” — a substitute for gasoline.

Discovered by J. P. Foster, chemist of one of the big sugar plantations of the island of Maui Hawaii, production within the next three months will be sufficient to furnish fuel for all cars on the islands should a gasoline shortage occur.

According to the first reports of the new fuel, brought to San Francisco by District Manager F. E. Carroll of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of California, “motor alcohol” gives more power, greater mileage, easier starting and more freedom from carbon than gasoline. It can be used without an adjustment of the carburetor.

The new fuel is performing in automobile, marine, stationary, truck and tractor engines. In a 36 hour test made with a 75 horsepower tractor the consumption of “motor alcohol” was four gallons an hour compared to four and a half gallons of gasoline in the same engine on the same work. Examination of the cylinders showed most of the old carbon deposit removed and the remainder so soft it could be removed with the fingers.

Sugar plantations have been letting their molasses run to waste or burning it for the potash recovery. Nitrogen and phosphoric acid are also valuable by-products of molasses. Now, however, production of the new fuel is found to be more profitable than obtaining other by-products.

At present there is enough molasses available to produce 9,000,000 gallons of “motor alcohol”, — enough to supply all automobiles in Hawaii. Development of this industry will release shipping space formerly used for transporting gasoline from the United States.

Goodyear Skill—as Represented in Tires for Small Cars

The high relative value built into Goodyear Tires, of the 30x3-, 30x3½-and 31x4-inch sizes, results directly from the extraordinary skill and care applied to their manufacture.

To make their quality available widely, Goodyear operates the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking one of these sizes, you can equip it with Goodyear Tires at our nearest Service Station.

Go there for the exceptional value in these tires made possible by Goodyear's resources, experience and demonstrated expertness in tire manufacture.
